Testimonials

● Singapore Institute of Management Pte Ltd

We met Steve and knew almost immediately, yes, this is the man who is going to make us stars within our own company as my colleague and I were the Recreation Club 2021 Chairpersons. And, given that I am penning this immediately after the event, it was an absolute success.

This is what you are going to get when you go with De Events.

- 1) The epitome of professionalism From the first meeting, Steve exuded professionalism, from the minute he presented who he has done events for, right up to how he kept us interested to listen to what he has to say. Steve gives you, the client, a sense of absolute confidence from the get-go, hence the biggest headache, which is the event going smoothly, is practically out of your hands and into his team and his!
- 2) Let him entertain you! Steve has a voice and personality that will not only engage everyone, so regardless of whether you're planning to get his team and him on board for a fun event like dinner and dance, or for a more formal, serious event like a government related event, you can be assured of the perfect balance of top-notch professionalism married with the fun factor. He holds himself so well that it truly is no surprise that he just continued to pick up gigs during the pandemic.
- 3) His team have his back! They were on point throughout. We received regular updates on how many people participated right up to settling any possible issues that could go wrong. Everything was so seamless, from the DJ to the team who did everything else behind the scenes. You can be assured of an epic event as it will go as smoothly as how you planned it. It is evident that Steve and his team have the experience and the talent, but something else sorely needed when running events, a heart that is passionate and loves every moment on stage.

I highly recommend De Events for any type of events, ranging from formal to just hair-raising fun. Steve and his people at De Events are truly gems. Please feel free to contact me if you need more information.

Dear Sir or Madam

Re: Letter of Recommendation for De Events

I met Mr Steve L when we were scouting for event companies to run our dinner and dance. At the time, due to the uncertainty of COVID-19, we were still unsure whether to have it done in a hybrid setting or virtual. Another concern was also keeping everyone enthusiastic while hosting a virtual dinner and dance.

We met Steve and knew almost immediately, yes, this is the man who is going to make us stars within our own company as my colleague and I were the Recreation Club 2021 Chairpersons. And, given that I am penning this immediately after the event, it was an absolute success.

This is what you are going to get when you go with De Events.

1) The epitome of professionalism

From the first meeting, Steve exuded professionalism, from the minute he presented who he has done events for, right up to how he kept us interested to listen to what he has to say.

Steve gives you, the client, a sense of absolute confidence from the get-go, hence the biggest headache, which is the event going smoothly, is practically out of your hands and into his team and his!

2) Let him entertain you!

Steve has a voice and personality that will not only engage everyone, so regardless of whether you're planning to get his team and him on board for a fun event like dinner and dance, or for a more formal, serious event like a government related event, you can be assured of the perfect balance of top-notch professionalism married with the fun factor. 3) His team have his back!

They were on point throughout. We received regular updates on how many people participated right up to settling any possible issues that could go wrong. Everything was so seamless, from the DI to the team who did everything else behind the scenes. You can be assured of an epic event as it will go as smoothly as how you planned it.

It is evident that Steve and his team have the experience and the talent, but something else sorely needed when running events, a heart that is passionate and loves every moment on stage. I highly recommend De Events for any type of events, ranging from formal to just hair-raising fun. Steve and his people at De Events are truly gems.
